IN THE SPECIFICATION:

Please amend the following paragraph(s) of the specification as indicated.

[0038]   The consumable with the attached memory device is then, when needed, installed in a printing device (step 202). As described above, the memory module and printing device are interfaced (step 203) so that the data on the memory module is made available to the printing device. The printing device then uploads data from the memory module for use by the embedded web server of the printing device (step 204). As described above, the printing device may upload and store web content or may upload an interface for accessing web content data that remains stored on the memory module (step 204).
